

Class diagram

The class diagram is also provided in the git repository.

How the work went

The work went well. On our own we watched the udeemy tutorial for the quiz app. The group have experience with working each other from previous years and previous courses. The communication was therefore no problem. We made an enhancement to the app and that was a restart functionality. This was partially developed in the tutorial but didn't have an actual functionality therefore we thought that was nice to implement. Sander helped Daniel understand the code we created together. For the class diagram we used a google package repository to convert the quiz app code into a class diagram.
